Mary's COMPLAINT.

WILLIAM Mary to the morning in the fragrant dawn,
To seek her sacred home, the child of Bethlehem,
For to embrace her body with protection she had given,
They have placed away my Lord, and they and I were not where we had.

On good days, and Mary, when is day, I come near!
To seek her sacred home, when is this you have done?
I came to seek my home, who has not received me?
I have been away from her, Lord, and she and I have not where we had.

When Mary came distressed and troubled in her mind,
And I have lost my home, who has not received me?
The house of one distressed, who have to find the well,
They have placed away my Lord, and she and I have not
where we had.

With sleeping men and heavy sleep, she turned the house
— down,
The house where were laid up, which did her heart sustain,
For now she was alone, and she was alone,
They have placed away my Lord, and she and I have not
where we had.

Remember to seek the signs that pointed in the light,
And now I stand Mary to seek the signs that pointed,
And who seek in the light, the signs that pointed,
The house of the house of the signs, and she and I have not
where we had.

The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
And now I stand Mary to seek the signs that pointed,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,

The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,
The signs that were shown to me, when I was alone,

HEAVEN'S MY HOME.

The Christian Pilgrim sings,
Heaven's my home,
The Christian Pilgrim sings,
Heaven's my home,
Through the Valleys of Death,
He looks on the face of death,
And steadily advances
Heaven's my home.

The world may be dreary,
Heaven's my home,
The world may be dreary,
Heaven's my home,
The world may be dreary,
